L3 LEADERSHIP PODCAST
WITH DOUG SMITH

FROM DRIVING A SAUSAGE DELIVERY TRUCK AND LIVING IN A TRAILER TO SIGNING A RECORD DEAL

ABOUT MICAH TYLER:

Micah is a Christian music artist who went from working as a sausage delivery truck driver to getting signed to a record label and playing hundreds of shows across the country. These nights on the road have certainly honed Micah's purpose for ministry through a growing list of self-penned tunes borne from a place that's as real as the person he's trying to be. "These songs are battle-tested," says Micah. "I want to live the music I'm writing. There are some songs I can't write because I haven't lived there yet. When someone comes up to me after a concert and tells me how my songs affected them, I want to make sure they know I can relate."

4 KEY TAKEAWAYS:

In this episode of the L3 Leadership podcast, Micah Tyler talks about his journey in becoming a chart-topping Christian artist, his new book, and how he finds faith through difficult times.

1. Micah talks about how he went from being a youth pastor and sausage delivery truck driver to finding music as his calling.
2. He talks about what it was like when his music charted and his career took off.
3. He shares what he's both enjoyed and found challenging with having the platform he now has.
4. Micah discusses his new book, Walking Free.

"I was so much more grateful to have a record deal at 33 than I would've been at 23."
